

News Release

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Culpeper Acquires Cox Residential Lumber Division

CULPEPER, VA, December 20, 2017 – Culpeper Wood Preservers, a family-owned business, is acquiring the Residential Lumber Division from Cox Industries. The closing is scheduled to occur on December 29, 2017. The acquisition of the Cox plants located in Orangeburg, SC, Coleridge, NC, Cove City, NC, and a laminated column manufacturing facility in Branchville, SC will solidify Culpeper Wood Preservers as one of the largest U.S. wood treating companies with ten operations servicing lumber dealers throughout the Southeast, Mid-Atlantic, Northeast and Midwest. Culpeper Wood Preservers produces pressure treated wood products including: micronized copper, fire retardant, borate, CCA industrial and marine, treated laminated columns, and kiln-dried after treatment along with a myriad of additional products and services.

Josh Daniel, CEO of Culpeper Wood Preservers, said, “Acquiring the Residential Lumber Division from Cox Industries represents another important step in our long-term growth strategy by expanding our product offerings and services to our customers. This unique growth opportunity will complement our existing businesses and with this acquisition our company can now provide more products to lumber dealers throughout all the regions we serve. The business culture of Culpeper Wood Preservers is closely aligned with that of Cox’s Residential business, which is focused on providing quality treated wood products and services to independents, family owned lumber dealers and building material companies.”

ABOUT CULPEPER

Founded in 1976 by Joseph R. Daniel, Culpeper Wood Preservers began as a local pressure treating company with a single location in Culpeper, Virginia and today is one of the largest producers of pressure treated lumber in the United States. Culpeper Wood Preservers is a leading manufacturer of pressure treated products to the residential, commercial, industrial and marine markets and employs more than 250 people. Culpeper Wood Preservers’ products are sold exclusively through independent lumber dealers throughout the Mid-Atlantic, Northeast, Midwest and South.

###